

Musings:

Is the Collapse of the Dollar Imminent?

January 19, 2023

They have said for twelve years now that the Dollar is on the verge of collapse. Why hasn't it happened? And all through that twelve years it was imminent that it was going to collapse. Right?

Now, this brings me back to the ESF account, the Exchange Stabilization Fund, which is that big account that the FEDS have never publicly audited. Beginning in 1972, there was no more buying and selling international trade to be settled in gold. From that time forward all international trade was settled in U.S. Dollars. Now after World War II how much gold did the United States have, because many of the allies and people sent large amounts of gold in exchange for fighting for them, so where did that gold go? Another factor to consider, during all this time from 1972 how much gold was sold to the federal government which was turned into coins and bars of gold? Now there are a lot of gold coins out there that many people have, but how much does the FED have that we know nothing about?

All that gold goes to one of three places: Fort Knox, then the big Federal Bank in New York, and then the ESF fund. Now the whistleblower video clips that we watched; I remember her stating that the United States has 15,000 tons of gold officially listed. But according to what she knows it may be three times that. If it was 15,000 to 17,000 tons, that brings the total up to 51,000 tons of gold; and no-one else in the world even comes close to the amount of gold that we have. So that's the only thing I can see that has kept the Dollar from collapsing. The FED and international trade are still settling nearly all trade in the world in U.S. Dollars. Only about 3% is settled in Chinese Yuan.

Now then, Jim Willie has never answered me back on my question concerning the ESF fund. So, it shows that wherever he gets his information, though it is a relatively high-level information, it is not the highest level of information. So, could it be and unknown to everyone, that the FED has that 51,000 tons of gold or maybe even more? We don't know, because it's never audited, and what little bit of monitoring that people see is all that we know. No-one has ever seen a public accounting of what is in the ESF fund.

Jim Willie claims that Brazil, India, China and Russia, the BRICS, plus the Asian commercial market they're working on, will soon replace the Dollar with the Chinese Yuan in international trade. He's been saying that for 4 or 5 years, but nothing has happened. And the FED keeps buying all the treasury bills, which will eventually give them total control of the world's financial structure. And I don't think that the BRICS have enough monetary clout to truly challenge the Dollar. And even though Saudi Arabia is selling some oil in Chinese Yuan, that's only 2% to 5% of their production, all the rest is in U.S. Dollars. So, this tells me that the BRICS do not have the clout to set up an effective competitive financial standard to replace the Dollar at this time.

Something is keeping America from collapsing. Look at all that is going on to try and bring us down. Two and half million immigrants, many major cities in total chaos, disrepair and the worst one is San Francisco. But they still haven't made any real progress in bringing us to a demise. They have made some progress, but when I watch all these sports events going on, the stadiums are filled to overflowing. When I look at the stock market, they keep saying the stock market is going to collapse, well it went down some, but it hasn't gone down below 30,000. However, it is hovering between 33,000 or 34,000. So, this tells me that the insiders know something that the collapse is not imminent. So, we'll have to wait and see. It just hangs out there with a lot of question marks.

Additional Thoughts:

I think one of the main reasons of taking the Dollar off the gold standard, was to keep as much gold as possible in America. This is because the amount of gold we accumulated during and shortly after World War II must have been an awful lot of gold but was never publicly accounted for.

Could this be the beginning of the Exchange Stabilization Fund in the FED that has never been audited or accounted for? If that is the case, then there may be way more gold than the whistleblower of the FED was able to figure.

Now, I say this because there has to be some reason that at 31.4 trillion Dollars in federal debt that the Dollar has not collapsed. And as we have seen, they have been saying this ever since the debt hit 10 trillion. So, the FED must have something that is so huge that they can't divulge how much it is; and this may be the reason why they have not collapsed the Dollar. Because if the price of gold goes way high, some even say $3,000 an ounce shortly, then the gold holdings unknown to us that the FED holds will increase that much more in value. So, there is some reason why that the FED is stronger than the International Bank of Settlements and the World Bank combined, and all other central banks in the world.
